Dance the old year out and the new year in at Howland hall to-night. Gents, 75c; ladies, free.—adv.

Edward O. Jackson, who is associated with Albert Marr, formerly of this city, in the grocery business in St. Albans, Mass., arrived in the city this morning from Boston for a visit at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Joe W. Jackson of South Main street.

Unless the weather man is so flabbergasted by the crazy antics of young 1916 as to forget all about his sworn duty, the cold spell projected will be with us to-night when 1915 emits its dying gasp. A fore-warning of what may be expected almost any day between this and March 21 was discernible in the frost stand which the mercury took this morning. It began to sag before 9 o'clock last night and this morning plenty of people could be found who saw the quicksilver quivering across the minus 18 mark. Minus 18 being the milken figure, too, others who saw that low registration stand corroborated. At 7 o'clock it was 8 or 10 below zero. Inasmuch as operations in most of the storehouses is suspended this week, the cold weather wrought little difference with the cutters, although at the Louis Dillie Granite Co., in the north end, where work has been going on steadily, the men who reported at whistie time were told to go home.

Notice to Farmers.

I am agent for "The Farming Bulletin," the best and biggest farm paper published. In addition to its being the best farm paper, it contains complete progress of the war each week and is illustrated in colors, has a complete story each week, a news-week page, a page for the boys and girls. This farm paper will be sent to any address on receipt of subscription price. The year, $2.00; six months, $1.00; three months, 50c. A premium given free to all yearly subscribers. C. G. Rockford, 25 Madison avenue, Barre, Vt.
